PBH Nature's Media Amendment goes organic with OMRI listing

(Stuttgart, Arkansas) The Organic Materials Review Institute (OMRI) now lists PBH Nature's Media Amendment as a product suitable for certified organic production, handling and processing.

PBH Nature's Media Amendment is a uniquely processed rice hull media amendment used as a replacement for perlite in growing media. Approval as an OMRI-listed product verifies its organic nature and is important news for organic plant producers and growers dedicated to sustainability. The Washington State Department of Agriculture also registers PBH Nature's Media Amendment for use in organic agriculture.

PBH Nature's Media Amendment is a renewable resource requiring no mining or land disruption to produce. It produces optimum porosity in the growing media. The material decomposes over time, but not within a typical plant production cycle.

Riceland Foods, Inc., a farmer-owned cooperative founded in 1921 to market rice, produces and markets PBH Nature's Media Amendment. For more information and a list of distributors and soilless blend producers, visit www.riceland.com.
